Marine Copter Crashes

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — A big U.S. Marine helicopter loaded with lumber and ammunition crashed and caught fire as it was taking off today, protesting that the iron workers and the charred bodies of five were unfair to the sheet metal Marines were pulled from the wreckage.

Five other Marines aboard over who is to do certain work. The craft was injured. Witnesses said the helicopter tilted on its side about 15 feet off the ground and crashed into the wire around the helipad at the headquarters of the 1st Marine Division's 1st Regiment, three miles west of Da Nang.

The helicopter was loaded with supplies for observation posts on mountaintops around the headquarters base. The lumber was for bunker frames. The crash touched off ammunition aboard the craft, and flames and bullets flew about the area. MPs kept spectators away as Marine firemen extinguished the flames.

Investigators were studying the possibility that the big twinrotor helicopter was overloaded.

The U.S. Command said five other Americans were wounded when two Army helicopters were shot down and destroyed in Phuoc Long Province Sunday and Monday. The losses announced today brought the number of helicopters reported lost to 3,444 since Jan. 1, 1961.

Little ground action was reported across South Vietnam.

Nixon Orders Disclosure Of Casualties in Laos

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid congressional charges he is dodging demands for disclosure of U.S.-Laotian involvement, President Nixon has ordered the public release of American casualties and air losses as they occur in the Southeast Asian country.

In announcing the policy change Monday night, the White House, disclosed six civilians were killed in Laos last year as the result of hostile enemy action.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the administration will immediately "inform the American public about all military aircraft losses and military air personnel casualties in Laos once search-and-rescue missions are completed."

Ziegler said this is the same policy followed on Vietnam losses. In the past, casualties in Laos have been lumped with those of Southeast Asia as a whole.

Of the six civilians, all described as having support rather than active military roles, three were killed by ambush, one was shot as he was piloting a helicopter, and two were killed by what the White House called possible hostile fire.

Three worked for International Voluntary Services, described as a Peace Corps type organization, and three for Air America, an airlifter of supplies, equipment and people.

Both organizations were under contract with the Agency for International Development, the State Department said. Meanwhile, the Los Angeles Times reported in today's MARSTON — An estimated 1,300 workers are off the job today at the Noranda Aluminum Company and city of New Madrid power plant sites at St. Joe Industrial park two miles east of Marston.

Pickets were set up this morning by sheet metal workers as it was taking off today, protesting that the iron workers and the charred bodies of five were unfair to the sheet metal Marines were pulled from the wreckage.

The dispute apparently arose over who is to do certain work.

A spokesman for the laborers craft, who honored the picket lines, said it was expected that the workmen would return to the job tomorrow.

Police pay now ranges from $33.80 a month for beginning patrolmen to $425.04 for captains.

Hanoi Spokesmen Tie Cease-Fire To U.S. Commitment to Pull out

EDITOR'S NOTE: Daniel De Luce, who recently returned from an 18-day visit to North Vietnam, examines in this dispatch the attitude in the North toward an end to the war.

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Writer
Have the North Vietnamese made any significant change in their views on ending the war?

The language of diplomacy is slippery at best. Assessments must come from those with day-to-day knowledge of the maneuverings on both sides.

But during my 18-day stay in North Vietnam, my hosts appeared eager to press on me a message they seemed to regard as significant.

They are willing to agree to a cessation of all hostilities in South Vietnam, a Foreign Ministry spokesman told me, if the United States is prepared to make a commitment now to withdraw all American and allied forces from the South in the future.

"All problems about South Vietnam are linked to the United States' withdrawal of all its armed forces," the Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

"If the United States will agree to carry out such a withdrawal, discussions can be held and a date agreed on for completion of the withdrawal. Conditions will be assured that all foreign troops will be able to leave South Vietnam in perfect safety and without harm."

The spokesman offered this version of North Vietnam's position of March 3 in receiving two representatives of The Associated Press at the conclusion of an authorized 18-day visit to his country.

Previously, on Feb. 25, Vice Premier and Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh discussed in an Associated Press interview the terms under which it might be possible to agree to a standstill cease-fire with U.S. forces.

To a written question on cease-fire terms, which had been submitted 10 days earlier, the vice premier replied in writing: "As has been stated in the 10-point over-all solution of the National Front for Liberation and the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam, on the basis of its principles and content, the parties shall reach understanding to the effect of concluding agreements on the relevant questions with a view to bringing the war in South Vietnam to an end, and contributing to restore peace in Vietnam."

Asked in person to amplify his response about cease-fire terms to clarify the matter for foreign readers, he said: "The main thing is that such an agreement must provide for the withdrawal of all American troops and for the right of the South Vietnamese to settle their problems among themselves. That means recognition of the independence and sovereignty of South Vietnam."

The Foreign Ministry spokesman discussed cease-fire terms after the interview with the vice premier had been published in the United States. Some headlines in American newspapers described the interview as Communist insistence on an American pull-out before peace is possible in Vietnam. The North Vietnamese seemed to be aware of how the world press had handled the interview.

The spokesman appeared anxious to have it clearly understood that cessation of hostilities could be arranged well in advance of a definitive peace settlement, but if all fighting were to be stopped at this time, an American commitment was required to withdraw all its military forces in future.

At the Paris peace talks, the Communist delegates have demanded that the United States "must withdraw all its troops and the troops of its satellites from South Vietnam without setting any condition."

There was no mention of any time frame in the discussion with me. Small shifts in language have played a role in the diplomatic history of the Vietnam war.

In January, 1967, Nguyen Duy Trinh declared in an interview for The Associated Press that if American bombing stopped, talks "could" start with the United States. By the end of 1967, Hanoi was saying talks "would" start if bombing Mo., ceased. Soon after President Lyndon B. Johnson ordered everything possible to curb the bombing halted north of the 20th parallel March 31, 1968, the United States and North Vietnam agreed to open peace talks and the North Vietnamese began lifting a siege against 5,000 Marines at Khe Sanh. The talks started in Paris May 10. The end of all bombing in November 1968, getting the best medical attention possible and that "everything possible is being done."

Hall, who is a physician, said meningitis is a recurring problem of close-quarter living, about which there is insufficient knowledge and no effective total preventive.

Randall said "We believe that with the rest of the month, the worst may be over." He said the trainees are not fearful of the epidemic and are continuing to train.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., said last week the investigation had not changed his plans for his own investigation. The Missouri senator said he had received letters from parents whose sons are stationed at the base and reporting they were overworked and dissuaded from seeking medical attention when ill.

"The coalition should be as broad as possible. South Vietnam has suffered too much for the past of political forces to be questioned. All who stand for peace, independence and neutrality are needed in the coalition. If Mr. Thieu stands for these principles, he, too, will be accepted regardless of his past, but of course there's no chance that he would want it. There are few like him—very few."

Others previously charged in the alleged massacre are Calley, Sgt. David Mitchell, 29, of St. Francisville, La., and Capt. Thomas K. Willingham, 26, accused of killing 20 Vietnamese. The Army has not announced whether Willingham will face a court-martial.

While the Army declined to release details today, it did say the charges generally involve offenses allegedly committed against Vietnamese while the accused men were serving with the Americal Division in Vietnam in March 1968.

Calley, 26, of Miami, has been ordered to undergo a court-martial at Ft. Benning, Ga., May 18. He is charged with premeditated murder in the slaying of 102 civilians in the My Lai raid.

Medina was charged with murder of two persons, maiming and murder of "one suspected enemy" and with murder of another also during interrogation.

Medina has said he knows of no massacre at My Lai. He told

Seven per cent pay increases for five employees of the public library were voted yesterday afternoon by the library board. The increases will become effective April 1.

The peace program is being brought from Sam Neua, the Pathet Lao capital in northeast Laos, by Col. Thavinh Sienkahn. He is described as a senior aide to Prince Souphanouvong, the titular leader of the Pathet Lao and Prince Souvanna Phouma's half brother.

A statement outlining the Pathet Lao's proposal was broadcast by Radio Hanoi. A spokesman for Prince Souvanna Phouma said the government wanted to "get some more details first" before making a proposal of its own.

Referring to one of the key points in the Pathet Lao plan, calling for a "consultative political conference" composed of representatives of all Lao parties, the spokesman said: "We don't know what they mean by all Lao parties."

The 1962 Geneva agreement recognized three political factions in Laos: Souvanna Phouma's neutralists, the southern royalists led by Prince Boun Oum, and the Pathet Lao. The neutralists and royalists work together with U.S. support. North Vietnam supports the Pathet Lao. But from time to time subfactions develop with the neutralists and royalists.

The government spokesman said Prince Souvanna also hopes Prince Souphanouvong's letter would make such suggestions as a site for the proposed consultative conference.

Demand for

Locks Expected

To Increase

Eight are working at the National Lock Company plant but the number will grow to 100 in eight to 10 weeks, Don Malott, plant manager, told the Rotary club last night at the Rustic Rock Inn.

He predicted that the plant, which assembles locks for the new home, mobile home and replacement markets, would employ 200 in two or three years with a longer range goal of 300 employees.

Malott said that heavy demand for locks was expected when credit restraints are lifted from housing.

The hardware division of National Lock, a subsidiary of Keystone Consolidated Industries, produces $40 million in annual sales, Malott explained.

Chip Schmerbach, handed out tickets for the club's annual chili day in the American Legion Hall March 23. There will be no Rotary meeting on that date.

Harold Schultz, general foreman of the National Lock plant, was a guest of the club.

Grass Fire

CHARLESTON — Charleston firemen went to the Lincoln school yesterday at 5:20 p.m. to put out a grass fire. No damage was reported.

Robert L. Mathis, Sikeston, was sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $50 in magistrate court this morning on a charge of driving without an operator's license.

Judge M. E. Montgomery imposed the sentence and fine after Sonny Johnson, a Sikeston businessman, and Mathis informed the court the Mathis has a job waiting with Johnson.

Montgomery said Mathis had been in trouble with the law.

"I have given him jail sentence after jail sentence, but it doesn't do any good except to take him out of circulation for a while," the judge said.

Johnson told Judge Montgomery Mathis doesn't seem to get into trouble when he is regularly employed. The judge ordered Mathis committed to jail.

Henry Holland, route one, Benton, was fined $100 and sentenced to 90 days in jail on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Robert Hall, Dexter, was fined $10 and five a 30-day jail term for improper vehicle registration. He also was fined $10 for having inadequate brakes on his car.

Milton J. Johnson, 112 Osage, was fined $100 and given a 30 day term for driving while intoxicated. The sentence will be suspended if fined and court costs are paid.

Vernon Sain, 104 Fifth, was fined $5 for improper vehicle registration.

Evelyn Brandy, route one, Sikeston, was fined $5 for not having a driver's license.

Richard Robinson, 221 Luther, was fined $10 for careless driving.

Judge Montgomery set a preliminary hearing for March 17 regarding Robert Allen Jones, Sikeston, who is charged with felonious burglary and theft. Bond was set at $1,000.

A felonious bad check charge was continued one week for Jack Matthews, Sikeston. Bond was set at $1,000.

Hodges, 24, faces two charges, one of rape, and another of assault with intent to commit murder.

Torres, 2, is accused in two counts; murder of one person, and murder and assault with intent to commit murder.

Additional charges have been filed against two others who have been previously charged.

They are Sgt. Charles E. Hutto, 21, of Tallulah, La., and Pvt. Gerald A. Smith, 22, of Chicago.

Both have been transferred to Ft. McPherson.

Hutto faces four additional charges. They are rape, murder, assault with intent to commit murder, and false swearing.

He had been charged previously with premeditated murder, rape and assault with intent to commit murder.

Smith now faces two additional charges of indecent assault and murder. He already had been charged with premeditated murder and indecent assault. The Army said the charge of indecent assault is a charge short of rape.

Others previously charged in the alleged massacre are Calley, Sgt. David Mitchell, 29, of St. Francisville, La., and Capt. Thomas K. Willingham, 25, accused of killing 20 Vietnamese. The Army has not announced whether Willingham will face a court-martial.

While the Army declined to release details today, it did say the charges generally involve offenses allegedly committed against Vietnamese while the accused men were serving with the Americal Division in Vietnam in March 1968.

Calley, 26, of Miami, has been ordered to undergo a court-martial at Ft. Benning, Ga., May 18. He is charged with premeditated murder in the slaying of 102 civilians in the My Lai raid.

Mitchell is charged with assault with intent to murder 30 Vietnamese noncombatants.

The AID appropriation for worldwide economic assistance in the current fiscal year is $1.42 billion, down three-quarters of a billion from what President Nixon wanted.

This year it is spending $413.7 million in Vietnam, chiefly to help keep the Vietnamese government going.

But of the 67 other countries, one-third receive only self-help grants ranging between $50,000 and $100,000 each, funds which enable a hard-pressed, backward and small country, for example, to buy the cement it needs to build a schoolhouse.

AID's basic assistance programs, which are the subject of the Peterson dismemberment proposal, breakdown as follows:

—Economic development loans granted on relatively easy terms to needy nations.

—Providing expert help for such programs as farming, public health and construction to achieve a quick improvement in production and living standards.

—Direct financial grants of the kind given South Vietnam for military efforts. This year 98 per cent of such assistance goes to three countries—South Vietnam, Laos and Thailand.

—Contributions to such international organizations as the United Nations Development Program and its children's fund.

—Promotion of private capital investment and administration of insurance and guarantee programs to encourage the flow of American money into high-risk areas.

The Peterson panel, whose recommendations were called "fresh and exciting" by Nixon, has proposed splitting up the functions of the present system among the following agencies:

—A U.S. development bank to handle lending with $2 billion appropriation and $2 billion of public borrowing authority. Experts think the bank also would handle the technical assistance program.

—A U.S. international development institute to do research on the application of modern technology to the development of poor countries. Such work now is scattered through AID operations.

—An overseas private investment corporation, already authorized by Congress and probably to be given increased importance in the President's new plans.

—A U.S. international development council, which would be a cabinet level policymaking group to oversee U.S. foreign assistance activities and coordinate their relationships with other policies such as trade.

—Some kind of office in the State Department to handle supporting assistance and probably some other activities such as disaster relief.

One of the principles laid down by the Peterson report was military related activities like financial help for South Vietnam should be separated from long term development work.

of a frequently reformed system of foreign assistance administration going back shakeups, the U.S. foreign aid program is facing the most radical reorganization in its history.

In line with a presidential task force's recommendation for dramatic reforms, President Nixon has promised a "new approach" to foreign assistance.

The White House fight for overseas assistance funds has grown far more difficult in recent years with many congressmen seeking to cut U.S. costs and involvement abroad.

Nixon obviously hopes the new approach will make the whole foreign assistance establishment more acceptable on Capitol Hill.

The President won't send his final recommendations to Congress until next January, but officials feel the broad outline of his final proposals was set out in the report issued last weekend by the task force headed by former Bank of America President Rudolph A. Peterson.

The Peterson report, highly praised by Nixon, calls for dismembering the present foreign assistance organization, the Agency for International Development, and scattering its functions among five new or reorganized divisions.

The report also called for greater emphasis on international cooperation, increased use of international agencies and more responsibility by underdeveloped nations for planning and administering aid programs.

FT. LEONARD WOOD, Mo. Army officials reported no new confirmed cases of meningitis at Ft. Leonard Wood Monday and nine patients in the base hospital were doing as well as expected.

The big Army training base was the subject of an investigation last week by a congressional subcommittee after three deaths and 29 cases of meningitis were reported this year.

The subcommittee headed by Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., toured the base and reported the Army was doing everything possible to curb the infection and to adequately care for those stricken.

Other members of the investigation team were Rep. William J. Randall, D-Mo., and Rep. Durward Hall, R-Mo.

Ichord said he found patients in the meningitis wards were getting the best medical attention possible and that "everything possible is being done."

Hall, who is a physician, said meningitis is a recurring problem of close-quarter living, about which there is insufficient knowledge and no effective total preventive.

Randall said "We believe that with the rest of the month, the worst may be over." He said the trainees are not fearful of the epidemic and are continuing to train.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., said last week the investigation had not changed his plans for his own investigation. The Missouri senator said he had received letters from parents whose sons are stationed at the base reporting they were overworked and dissuaded from seeking medical attention when ill.

"The coalition should be as broad as possible. South Vietnam has suffered too much for the past of political forces to be questioned. All who stand for peace, independence and neutrality are needed in the coalition. If Mr. Thieu stands for these principles, he, too, will be accepted regardless of his past, but of course there's no chance that he would want it. There are few like him—very few."

You can be sure most of the things that come to the fellow who waits aren't the things he was waiting for!

KEEPING THE PRESIDENT INFORMED

How does President Richard Nixon keep track of current events?

Surely, this should not be any great problem. After all, the President has at his service our huge Central Intelligence Agency with its world-wide information gathering apparatus; the FBI, which certainly knows a little about what is going on in the United States; the State Department, which has its "information officers" stationed in American embassies all over the world; and each member of Mr. Nixon's cabinet also have their own trained staff members to gather data on just about every conceivable subject under the sun.

In addition there are 100 U.S. Senators and 435 Congressmen in Washington who, it is well known, are just about the biggest gossips of any group in the world. It has to be that a few of them call the White House occasionally, and say, "Mr. President, let me tell you what I heard up on The Hill today..."

Certainly the President leans heavily on all of these special sources.

But it turns out that Mr. Nixon gets his basic day-to-day information about the events of the nation and the world from the same place you do - the newspaper.

In a radio interview in Washington recently, Mr. Patrick J. Buchanan, Special Assistant to the President, revealed that every morning Mr. Nixon receives a digest of the news, culled from 50 newspapers. The specially typed daily news summaries, he said, contained from 4,000 to 10,000 words. Along with the typewritten summary is a folder containing newspaper clipping, columns and editorials from all over the country.

Thus, President Nixon carries on both a tradition and a habit as old as our country itself; because President George Washington, too, was an avid reader of the newspapers of his day (which were all weeklies or semi-weeklies). Indeed, even before he became our first President, and while he was commanding the Continental Army, Washington not only read the newspapers himself but on occasion had them read to his troops as well.

Much as we all enjoyed listening to the "quickie" news on radio and tv, we depend heavily on the printed word carried in the local newspapers for our knowledge of current events.

If we had our druthers we ask the state department: With all these goodwill trips how come we don't have any?

Congress has been urged by the National Association of Manufacturers to reject legislative proposals for price-wage guideposts. Experience has shown that they don't work in curbing inflation. The present inflation has its roots in the fiscal and monetary mistakes of earlier years. To achieve price stability we will have to preserve in the present policies of fiscal and monetary restraint. Seeking a shortcut to price stability through guideposts would only distract us from the needed effort.

BOSTON MASSACRE BICENTENARY

On the night of March 5, 1770, "the foundation of American independence was laid." John Adams, patriot and second President of the United States, used these words to describe the Boston Massacre. On Monday, March 5, the nation will commemorate the 200th anniversary of the incident. It will be the first of a number of celebrations culminating in the 1976 bicentenary of the American Declaration of Independence.

To call the March 5 clash a "massacre" is a misnomer. About 9 p.m., a group of ten British soldiers, led by Captain Thomas Preston, set out along King Street to rescue a sentry who had been attacked by a Boston mob. On their return, the soldiers were assaulted, both verbally and physically, by about 60 rioters. In the melee that followed, a few of the soldiers fired into the crowd. Who, if anyone, gave the order to fire remains a mystery. Five men were killed, but hardly "under circumstances of atrocity or cruelty" as the word "massacre" implies.

Yet the colonists, led by the indomitable Samuel Adams, transformed the incident into a cause celebre. Exaggerated news accounts were circulated through the colonies. Paul Revere made an engraving entitled "The Bloody Massacre" which had great propaganda value. The five victims of the clash were portrayed as martyrs. Michael Johnson, later identified as Crispus Attucks, achieved lasting fame as the first Negro to die for American independence.

Only after the withdrawal of the British troops from Boston, the rescinding of certain duties by the British Parliament and a trial - in which John Adams won acquittals for the British soldiers involved in the clash - did public feelings subside. War between Great Britain and the colonies did not begin until April 17, 1775, more than five years after the Boston Massacre. During that time, other incidents sharpened British-American antagonism, but the incident on a moonlit March night was not forgotten. Hiller Zobel in a new book, The Boston Massacre (1970), states: "Not the least of the Massacre's attractions as an object of historic contemplation is the speed with which the men of 1770 (on both sides of the Atlantic and on both sides of the political fence) recognized the mythological value of what happened... The men in Boston and London, radicals and Tories alike, had long struggled blindly to control, for whatever purpose, a growing historical wind whose power and direction they could only feel. The deaths on King Street were but an eddy in that growing tempest."

A BOOK TO READ...

In one of Disraeli's novels there appears a character, named Mr. Kremlin oddly enough, who is described as being "distinguished for ignorance; for he had only one idea and that was wrong."

For most American Liberals, their one idea about the Soviet Union, that it is "mellowing," is like Mr. Kremlin's, wrong. And former Washington Post Moscow correspondent, Anatole Shub, has written a fascinating little volume showing just how wrong.

(Mr. Shub became the Post's former Moscow correspondent after being called into the Foreign Ministry office and given the boot and 48 hours to leave the country for his "anti-Soviet" writing.)

"For two years I have watched Russia's rulers grimly attempt to turn the clock back," writes Shub in The New Russian Tragedy. "In part, I believe, it has been a reversion to Stalinism, although there has been no purge of Communist leaders and the political prisoners number of scores of thousands, rather than millions... the men who deposed Khrushchev in 1964 are cynical, crude, narrow-minded, frightened for their own privileges. They have shown themselves unable and increasingly unwilling to risk the reforms, small or large, required to meet the complex needs and aspirations of an ever more literate, sophisticated Russian society."

Citing examples of the Kremlin bosses' ignoring of the "progressive evolution" in Yugoslavia and their use of armed force to "strangle" Czechoslovakia's peaceful democratization, Shub charges Russia's invisible government with having turned increasingly to "repression and reaction, xenophobia and mystification" and "plunging the country's finest spirits into despair."

"Their oppressive, anachronistic system has not produced meat, apartments or happy smiles..." he says. "The sense of suffocation and choking among the educated is matched by the sullenness and permanent irritability of the masses. For both, alcohol is often the sole relief. Abortions, ulcers, high blood pressure, psychosomatic illness are the toll exacted on an incalculable scale."

Soviet actions since October, 1964, in fact speak more clearly even than the aggressive "theoretical" articles which appear in Russian journals, says Shub:

"Khrushchev's successors moved swiftly to intensify the arms race, seeking not only parity in nuclear capability but the capacity to intervene in limited wars by land, sea, and air. They accelerated rocket production, began building an anti-missile system, experimented with orbital bombs, raised new units of fleet marines and paratroopers, moved an expanded fleet into the Mediterranean... rebuffed western appeals to discuss mutual troop reductions in central Europe... mounted a massive program of arms aid (to North Vietnam)."

To back up his charges that the Stalinist system - "barbed wire, microphones, and all" - is still operating in the Soviet Union, Shub cites several examples:

"Except for the highest diplomats of major countries who have their own mansions, all foreigners live in a few segregated ghettos surrounded by barbed wire and patrolled 24 hours a day by the Russian KGB (secret police)."

"Foreigners cannot travel more than 25 miles outside Moscow without permission, which must be formally requested at least within 48 hours in advance. Only about 100 Soviet cities or towns are open, and there are some which foreigners have not visited in 40 years."

On the brighter side, Shub sees three things that stand out about the Soviet resistance movement:

1. The relative youth of the cive rebels. Most of those seized or persecuted in recent years have been under 30. A high proportion have been university students, and among the messages received by supporters of imprisoned writers Sunyavsky and Daniel was one from 24 grade-school children.

2. An unusual solidarity among the rebels of various kinds in different parts of the vast Soviet Union, and between the active rebels and more cautious "respectable" members of the Soviet scientific and cultural community.

3. Most intriguing, is the degree to which active opposition and doubt have already begun to penetrate what Communists call the "organs" - the agencies of repression such as the KGB, the MVD, the Army and the "special" branches of the party machine. The rollcall of rebels arrested, prosecuted, or dismissed from their posts includes not only army officers and local Community Party and youth officials, but former KGB investigators and sons of KGB officers.

Regarding the Soviet standard of living, Shub reports that while it is customary and polite for foreigners to say that "at least" living conditions have improved since the famine winter of 1946 - 47 when Moscovites ate cardboard, dogs and cats, the improvement has been minimal when compared to that of equally war-ravaged West Germany or, for that matter, Yugoslavia.

What does the future hold for the Soviet Union? In a word - revolution, says Shub, but the question is, how long before it begins?

"The question is how long the 'pre-revolutionary' phase (the present) may last - a decade, a generation, or even longer? I am inclined to be gloomy, but such matters of timing are totally unpredictable. The decisive catalyst might be anything from a border war with China to a riot in a Moscow butcher's shop."

People from other states contributed a little over 13 percent to the 1969 Missouri traffic toll.

The Missouri Highway Patrol reports that out of the 1,521 persons killed in Missouri traffic last year, 205 of the victims came from 27 other states and Korea. This is 20 more visitors than were killed in 1968.

Included in last year's non-resident toll were 103 drivers, 91 passengers and 11 pedestrians.

Illinois had the highest number of people killed in Missouri traffic accidents last year, 49. Next highest was Kansas with 40. The States of Iowa and Arkansas each had 20 of their citizens die in Missouri vehicular mishaps.

Also included in the number of out-of-state residents killed here in traffic was a passenger from as far west as Hawaii, four persons from the southern State of Texas, and two people from the eastern State of Maryland. A 72 year old woman from Seoul, Korea died in an unusual

NEW YORK (AP) — Manhattan ain't what it used to be.

The glamor borough of Little Old New York, once the mecca of the nation's talent and a magnet for anybody looking for a good time is slowly losing its charm and its population, too.

It is hard to knock a town you've loved. It's like telling a wife or an old sweetheart that she's faded and ought to do something about it quick.

But Manhattan certainly does need a trip to the beauty parlor and some kind of postgraduate course in how to improve her personality. She needs a facelift and a heartlift. For, to more and more of her admirers, visitors or dwellers, the fun of being in her company is hardly worth the trouble that goes with it.

Here are some of the reasons why:

Getting to work on time has become any day's major achievement. The subways and the suburban railroads appear to be vying in a contest to determine which can charge passengers the most and give the least.

It is as difficult to get a cab during the rush hours as it is to get a stagecoach or a ride by horseback, forms of transportation which vanished from here some decades back. You don't tell a cab driver where to go - you beg him.

The only thing higher than the new skyscraper apartments and business buildings going up is the sky-high rents they charge for occupancy. That's why many people and business firms are moving away. Manhattan is threatened with becoming a accident in Missouri last year. The lady fell from the vehicle in which she was riding when a car door suddenly opened.

The youngest out-of-state residents to be listed as Missouri traffic fatalities in 1969 were two 4 year old youngsters - a boy from Texas and a girl from the State of Oklahoma.

The oldest non-Missourian killed in the State last year as a result of a traffic accident was an 83 year old man from Kansas. He died from injuries sustained when the car he was driving ran off the road.

Unable to find a suitable place for a long embrace, the shy young lovers headed for the railroad station where they exchanged fond kisses beside a train ready to depart.

After several similar performances, a knowing porter whispered to the man, "Take her to the bus station; there's a bus leaving about every three minutes."

The patient told his psychiatrist that he was going to get married.

"Who's the lucky bride?" inquired the doctor.

"My pet, that dear little octopus," replied the patient.

"Now, now," said the doctor soothingly, "you know you can't marry an octopus. You must put that out of your mind."

"Okay, doc," said the patient. "But what do I do with the eight rings?"

TAXPAYERS HAVE

Any failure on the part of law enforcement officers to follow proper procedures in informing lawbreakers of their legal rights can result in light penalties or no punishment for perpetrators of the most vicious acts. It now appears, at long last, that the poor, battered taxpayer is to be accorded a little more official concern for his rights under the law.

place where only the very rich and the crowded poor can afford to live. The middle class is fleeing.

An atmosphere of fear pervades the city even more than its polluted air. A fellow never knows when he wakes up in the morning whether he'll be mugged, bugged or slugged before nightfall. Losing faith in both doorlocks and the police, many people are buying dogs to protect them. Night life has fallen off, and one reason is simply that many folks feel it is too dangerous to go about the city after dark.

The streets are filthy dirty, and so is the conversation you hear while walking them. Hercules, who cleaned the famed Augean stables, would have a tougher task here, but at least Mayor John V. Lindsay might try to hire him.

It is easier for a child to get heroin here than to get an education. The school system is a perpetual battleground for contentious parents, teachers and bureaucratic educators. The student remains an innocent bystander and not always innocent himself.

Practically every food worth eating, every cultural event worth seeing, is still here - but how many guys can afford to spend $50 or more in an evening taking his girl out to a good meal and a second-rate musical?

Well, if Manhattan is all that bad, why doesn't a fellow just pick up stakes and move elsewhere? The problem is, where in America can you find another city that isn't as bad as Manhattan - or rapidly getting to be?

Certainly, taxpayers should receive as much or more official consideration of their legal rights as do lawbreakers apprehended by the police. The Internal Revenue Service is to be commended for its action.

AN EXPRESSION OF APPRECIATION

No better evidence of the improved health of longevity of U.S. citizens can be found than

Senator Phil Hart, D-Mich., the Senate Anti-Trust chairman, called the secret meeting to get approval to send an investigative report by staff consultant Bernard Webb to the Wisconsin Insurance Commission.

The Webb report blows the lid off a scheme by high Republicans, including Assistant Secretary of Defense Robert Froehke, to convert Hardware Mutual Fire Insurance, a Wisconsin outfit with $86 million in assets, into a stock company. This would have transferred control of the mutual company from the 341,500 policyholders to president John Joans, Froehke, and 31 of their pals.

Froehke resigned as Hardware vice president when his friend, Secretary of Defense Mel Laird, brought him into the Pentagon. Yet Froehke attended a board meeting after his resignation and retained a $200,000 share in the stock company deal.

$10 MILLION DEAL
It told, the 33 stood to make a $10 million bonanza at the expense of the policyholders. The Webb report showed that the Wisconsin Insurance Department had actually helped with the planning. And the Chase Manhattan Bank assisted with a $4.5 million loan promise, worked out secretly in advance.

Liberalization of the age limit for donating blood was agreed to jointly by the American Association of Blood Banks and the American National Red Cross. The two organizations together collect and process 90 per cent of the more than 6.5 million pints of blood used annually for surgery and therapy in U.S. hospitals. Some time ago, it was suggested that seasonal blood shortages might be alleviated if people were encouraged to celebrate their birthdays by donating a pint of blood at the nearest blood bank or collection center. Offering to donate blood is also one way in which we can express appreciation of the health services and miracle drugs that have added years to our lives.

Dodd, the third musketeer, quickly sided with the other two. But he feared the public might learn of his secret efforts to muzzle the story of the attempted takeover. He warned of press leaks.

"There is too much of that around here. It is all a disgrace," he said, peering about, as if the dignified Negro serving coffee might be listening in.

Hart cautioned that if the coup succeeded in Wisconsin, it would open the floodgates to similar takeovers, costing millions of insured Americans hundreds of millions of dollars.

Already the counsel for County Mutual Insurance of Bloomington, Ill., had written confidentially to Hardware lawyers about "converting our mutual casualty and property insurance company to a stock company."

And Union Mutual Life Insurance of Portland, Me., with assets of $239 million had a board made up of prestigious GOP business men, had also written to Hardware for information on how to do it.

Meanwhile, cracker-voiced John McClellan, D-Ark., had been let in through the closed doors. Despite banking conflicts of his own, there was too much in the inquisitive cop in McClellan for Hruska to take him for granted.

"John, ... there is a matter of ethics involved here," said Hruska, again raising ethics to defend the unethical. "Here is... a pending proceeding in Wisconsin." McClellan cocked his old rooster eye at Hruska.

"It is being contested?" right now," soothed Hruska. "Is it being contested?"

CRITICS OF PATRIOTISM

Although a recent turn to the right in America has caused patriotism to become somewhat more fashionable than it was a while ago, the downgraders of this noble sentiment are still at work. They realize there is a limit to what they can accomplish by open denunciation of patriots, so they use the old techniques of "divide and conquer" and "discredit by innuendo."

The critic of patriotism says our first loyalty must be to the world as a whole and not to our home country. He accuses citizens who give first devotion to their homeland of being bigoted and warmongers. He says patriotism is basically a wartime fever and fosters blind obedience to worn-out principles. He downgrades the flag, the patriot's salute to it, and its symbolism in our heritage of freedom. He wants God removed from song, building, classroom and public lands. He demands license for the atheist, the one-world advocate and the breaker of selected laws. He wants restraints placed on the believer in God and the law-abiding citizen.

The anti-patriot American says nobody should be allowed to interfere with his acts of violent demonstration, sniping, looting, marching, sitting and capturing. He holds there is nothing sacred about public buildings, private property, family life, and even the church.

The critics of patriotism are quite vocal in stating the principles to which they will not be loyal. They never seem to know to what they will be loyal. They are easy to spot by their words and actions, and they cannot stand against the truth the patriot knows. H.L.H.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

WASHINGTON - The insurance industry, with its billions of dollars, have influential friends on Capitol Hill who do their best work against policyholders in dark secrecy.

Thus Senators Roman Hruska, R-Neb., Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii, and Tom Dodd, D-Conn., the three musketeers of the insurance industry, made sure the doors were shut tight when they tried to hush up an insurance scandal.

Dodd, fearing their skulduggery would be exposed, grumbled at the December meeting that it was "outrageous" and a "disgrace" that their secret proceedings sometimes leaked into the press.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

You can be sure most of the things that come to the fellow who waits aren't the things he was waiting for!

KEEPING THE PRESIDENT INFORMED

How does President Richard Nixon keep track of current events?

Surely, this should not be any great problem. After all, the President has at his service our huge Central Intelligence Agency with its world-wide information gathering apparatus; the FBI, which certainly knows a little about what is going on in the United States; the State Department, which has its "information officers" stationed in American embassies all over the world; and each member of Mr. Nixon's cabinet also have their own trained staff members to gather data on just about every conceivable subject under the sun.

In addition there are 100 U.S. Senators and 435 Congressmen in Washington who, it is well known, are just about the biggest gossipers of any group in the world. It has to be that a few of them call the White House occasionally, and say, "Mr. President, let me tell you what I heard up on The Hill today..."

Certainly the President leans heavily on all of these special sources.

But it turns out that Mr. Nixon gets his basic day-to-day information about the events of the nation and the world from the same place you do - the newspaper.

In a radio interview in Washington recently, Mr. Patrick J. Buchanan, Special Assistant to the President, revealed that every morning Mr. Nixon receives a digest of the news, culled from 50 newspapers. The specially typed daily news summaries, he said, contained from 4,000 to 10,000 words. Along with the typewritten summary is a folder containing newspaper clipping, columns and editorials from all over the country.

Thus, President Nixon carries on both a tradition and a habit as old as our country itself; because President George Washington, too, was an avid reader of the newspapers of his day (which were all weeklies or semi-weeklies). Indeed, even before he became our first President, and while he was commanding the Continental Army, Washington not only read the newspapers himself but on occasion had them read to his troops as well.

Much as we all enjoyed listening to the "quickie" news on radio and tv, we depend heavily on the printed word carried in the local newspapers for our knowledge of current events.

If we had our druthers we ask the state department: With all these goodwill trips how come we don't have any?

Congress has been urged by the National Association of Manufacturers to reject legislative proposals for price-wage guideposts. Experience has shown that they don't work in curbing inflation. The present inflation has its roots in the fiscal and monetary mistakes of earlier years. To achieve price stability we will have to preserve in the present policies of fiscal and monetary restraint. Seeking a shortcut to price stability through guideposts would only distract us from the needed effort.

BOSTON MASSACRE BICENTENARY

On the night of March 5, 1770, "the foundation of American independence was laid." John Adams, patriot and second President of the United States, used these words to describe the Boston Massacre. On Monday, March 5, the nation will commemorate the 200th anniversary of the incident. It will be the first of a number of celebrations culminating in the 1976 bicentenary of the American Declaration of Independence.

To call the March 5 clash a "massacre" is a misnomer. About 9 p.m., a group of ten British soldiers, led by Captain Thomas Preston, set out along King Street to rescue a sentry who had been attacked by a Boston mob. On their return, the soldiers were assaulted, both verbally and physically, by about 60 rioters. In the melee that followed, a few of the soldiers fired into the crowd. Who, if anyone, gave the order to fire remains a mystery. Five men were killed, but hardly "under circumstances of atrocity or cruelty" as the word "massacre" implies.

Yet the colonists, led by the indomitable Samuel Adams, transformed the incident into a cause celebre. Exaggerated news accounts were circulated through the colonies. Paul Revere made an engraving entitled "The Bloody Massacre" which had great propaganda value. The five victims of the clash were portrayed as martyrs. Michael Johnson, later identified as Crispus Attucks, achieved lasting fame as the first Negro to die for American independence.

Only after the withdrawal of the British troops from Boston, the rescinding of certain duties by the British Parliament and a trial - in which John Adams won acquittals for the British soldiers involved in the clash - did public feelings subside. War between Great Britain and the colonies did not begin until April 17, 1775, more than five years after the Boston Massacre. During that time, other incidents sharpened British-American antagonism, but the incident on a moonlit March night was not forgotten. Hiller Zobel in a new book, The Boston Massacre (1970), states: "Not the least of the Massacre's attractions as an object of historic contemplation is the speed with which the men of 1770 (on both sides of the Atlantic and on both sides of the political fence) recognized the mythological value of what happened... The men in Boston and London, radicals and Tories alike, had long struggled blindly to control, for whatever purpose, a growing historical wind whose power and direction they could only feel. The deaths on King Street were but an eddy in that growing tempest."

A BOOK TO READ...

In one of Disraeli's novels there appears a character, named Mr. Kremlin oddly enough, who is described as being "distinguished for ignorance; for he had only one idea and that was wrong."

For most American Liberals, their one idea about the Soviet Union, that it is "mellowing," is, like Mr. Kremlin's, wrong. And former Washington Post Moscow correspondent, Anatole Shub, has written a fascinating little volume showing just how wrong.

(Mr. Shub became the Post's former Moscow correspondent after being called into the Foreign Ministry office and given the boot and 48 hours to leave the country for his "anti-Soviet" writing.)

"For two years I have watched Russia's rulers grimly attempt to turn the clock back," writes Shub in The New Russian Tragedy. "In part, I believe, it has been a reversion to Stalinism, although there has been no purge of Communist leaders and the political prisoners number of scores of thousands, rather than millions... the men who deposed Khrushchev in 1964 are cynical, crude, narrow-minded, frightened for their own privileges. They have shown themselves unable and increasingly unwilling to risk the reforms, small or large, required to meet the complex needs and aspirations of an ever more literate, sophisticated Russian society."

Citing examples of the Kremlin bosses' ignoring of the "progressive evolution" in Yugoslavia and their use of armed force to "strangle" Czechoslovakia's peaceful democratization, Shub charges Russia's invisible government with having turned increasingly to "repression and reaction, xenophobia and mystification" and "plunging the country's finest spirits into despair."

"Their oppressive, anachronistic system has not produced meat, apartments or happy smiles..." he says. "The sense of suffocation and choking among the educated is matched by the sullenness and permanent irritability of the masses. For both, alcohol is often the sole relief. Abortions, ulcers, high blood pressure, psychosomatic illness are the toll exacted on an incalculable scale."

Soviet actions since October, 1964, in fact speak more clearly even than the aggressive "theoretical" articles which appear in Russian journals, says Shub:

"Khrushchev's successors moved swiftly to intensify the arms race, seeking not only parity in nuclear capability but the capacity to intervene in limited wars by land, sea, and air. They accelerated rocket production, began building an anti-missile system, experimented with orbital bombs, raised new units of fleet marines and paratroopers, moved an expanded fleet into the Mediterranean... rebuffed western appeals to discuss mutual troop reductions in central Europe... mounted a massive program of arms aid (to North Vietnam)."

To back up his charges that the Stalinist system - "barbed wire, microphones, and all" - is still operating in the Soviet Union, Shub cites several examples:

"Except for the highest diplomats of major countries who have their own mansions, all foreigners live in a few segregated ghettos surrounded by barbed wire and patrolled 24 hours a day by the Russian KGB (secret police)."

"Foreigners cannot travel more than 25 miles outside Moscow without permission, which must be formally requested at least within 48 hours in advance. Only about 100 Soviet cities or towns are open, and there are some which foreigners have not visited in 40 years."

On the brighter side, Shub sees three things that stand out about the Soviet resistance movement:

1. The relative youth of the ctive rebels. Most of those seized or persecuted in recent years have been under 30. A high proportion have been university students, and among the messages received by supporters of imprisoned writers Sunyavsky and Daniel was one from 24 grade-school children.

2. An unusual solidarity among the rebels of various kinds in different parts of the vast Soviet Union, and between the active rebels and more cautious "respectable" members of the Soviet scientific and cultural community.

3. Most intriguing, is the degree to which active opposition and doubt have already begun to penetrate what Communists call the "organs" - the agencies of repression such as the KGB, the MVD, the Army and the "special" branches of the party machine. The rollcall of rebels arrested, prosecuted, or dismissed from their posts includes not only army officers and local Community Party and youth officials, but former KGB investigators and sons of KGB officers.

Regarding the Soviet standard of living, Shub reports that while it is customary and polite for foreigners to say that "at least" living conditions have improved since the famine winter of 1946 - 47 when Moscovites ate cardboard, dogs and cats, the improvement has been minimal when compared to that of equally war-ravaged West Germany or, for that matter, Yugoslavia.

What does the future hold for the Soviet Union? In a word - revolution, says Shub, but the question is, how long before it begins?

"The question is how long the 'pre-revolutionary' phase (the present) may last - a decade, a generation, or even longer? I am inclined to be gloomy, but such matters of timing are totally unpredictable. The decisive catalyst might be anything from a border war with China to a riot in a Moscow butcher's shop."

People from other states contributed a little over 13 percent to the 1969 Missouri traffic toll.

The Missouri Highway Patrol reports that out of the 1,521 persons killed in Missouri traffic last year, 205 of the victims came from 27 other states and Korea. This is 20 more visitors than were killed in 1968.

NEW YORK (AP) — Manhattan ain't what it used to be.

The glamor borough of Little Old New York, once the mecca of the nation's talent and a magnet for anybody looking for a goole faw50 is slowly losing its charm and its population, too. It is hard to knock a town you've loved. It's like telling a wife or an old sweetheart that she's fadinept and ought to do something about it quick.

But Manhattan certainly does need a trip to the beauty parlor and some kind of postgraduate course in how to improve her personality. She needs a facelift and a heartlift. For, to more and more of her admirers, visitors or dwellers, the fun of being in her company is hardly worth the trouble that goes with it.

Here are some of the reasons why.

Getting to work on time has become any day's major achievement. The subway and the suburban railroads appear to be vying in a contest to determine which can charge passengers the most and give the least.

It is as difficult to get a cab during the rush hours as it is to get a stagecoach or a ride by horseback, forms of transportation which vanished from here some decades back. You don't tell a cab driver where to go - you beg him.

The only thing higher than the new skyscraper apartments and business buildings going up is the sky-high rents they charge for occupancy. That's why many people and business firms are moving away. Manhattan is threatened with becoming a place where only the very rich and the crowded poor can afford to live. The middle class is fleeing.

An atmosphere of fear pall the city even more than its polluted air. A fellow never knows when he wakes up in the morning whether he'll be mugged, bugged or slugged before nightfall. Losing faith in both doorlocks and the police, many people are buying dogs to protect them. Night life has fallen off, and one reason is simply that many folks feel it is too dangerous to go about the city after dark.

The streets are filthy dirty, and so is the conversation you hear while walking them. Hercules, who cleaned the famed Augean stables, would have a tougher task here, but at least Mayor John V. Lindsay might try to hire him.

Practically every food worth eating, every cultural event worth seeing, is still here - but how many guys can afford to spend $50 or more in an evening taking his girl out to a good meal and a second-rate musical?

Well, if Manhattan is all that bad, why doesn't a fellow just pick up stakes and move elsewhere? The problem is, where in America can you find another city that isn't as bad as Manhattan - or rapidly getting to be?

The patient told his psychiatrist that he was going to get married.

"Who's the lucky bride?" inquired the doctor.

"My pet, that dear little octopus," replied the patient.

"Now, now," said the doctor soothingly, "you know you can't marry an octopus. You must put that out of your mind."

"Okay, doc," said the patient. "But what do I do with the eight rings?"

TAXPAYERS HAVE

Any failure on the part of law enforcement officers to follow proper procedures in informing lawbreakers of their legal rights can result in light penalties or no punishment for perpetrators of the most vicious acts. It now appears, at long last, that the poor, battered taxpayer is to be accorded a little more official concern for his rights under the law.

Liberalization of the age limit for donating blood was agreed to jointly by the American Association of Blood Banks and the American National Red Cross. The two organizations together collect and process 90 per cent of the more than 6.5 million pints of blood used annually for surgery and therapy in U.S. hospitals. Some time ago, it was suggested that seasonal blood shortages might be alleviated if people were encouraged to celebrate their birthdays by donating a pint of blood at the nearest blood bank or collection center. Offering to donate blood is also one way in which we can express appreciation of the health services and miracle drugs that have added years to our lives.

Do you suppose it's only coincidence that man's best friend can't talk?

Looking at the snarled traffic and then at his watch, a business man said to his partner, "We'd better walk. We don't have time to take a cab."

"Relax, Buster - relax!" said she. "I told you I would, and if I say I will it means I very well might!"

We planned a long summer trip, but because of economic conditions we will take only half of it. That should be both anti-inflationary and more restful.

Warden (to prisoner in electric chair) "Can I do anything for you?"

Prisoner "Yes, hold my hand."

Listening to the all-out "rock" tunes and the garb and gyrations that accompany them, it's hard to remember that "a pretty girl is like a melody."

In answer to the age-old sentence: "What reading matter would you take along if you were marooned on a desert island," a brilliant young co-ed answered: "A tatooed sailor."

Doc. Duncan Says

In the beginning God made the Heavens and Earth and the rivers of water. Our Forefathers used the rivers as a freeway to develop our nation. As they moved inland they used the Virgin timber removed to make way for farm land by sawing it into heavy plank making roads of plank for ox carts and mule teams to accommodate more settlers, then the railroads from coast to coast and from Canada to Mexico replaced plank roads,

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON - The insurance industry, with its billions of dollars, have influential friends on Capitol Hill who do their best work against policyholders in dark secrecy.

Thus Senators Roman Hruska, R-Neb., Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii, and Tom Dodd, D-Conn., the three musketeers of the insurance industry, made sure the doors were shut tight when they tried to hush up an insurance scandal.

Dodd, fearing their skulduggery would be exposed, grumbled at the December meeting that it was "outrageous" and a "disgrace" that their secret proceedings sometimes leaked into the press.

Despite their tight security, however, this column has now obtained a verbatim account of the Fix That Failed.

Senator Phil Hart, D-Mich., the Senate Anti-Trust chairman, called the secret meeting to get approval to send an investigative report by staff consultant Bernard Webb to the Wisconsin Insurance Commission.

The Webb report blows the lid off a scheme by high Republicans, including Assistant Secretary of Defense Robert Froehke, to convert Hardware Dealers Mutual Fire Insurance, a Wisconsin outfit with $86 million in assets, into a stock company. This would have transferred control of the mutual company from the 341,500 policyholders to president John Joanis, Froehke, and 31 of their pals.

Froehke resigned as a Hardware vice president when his friend, Secretary of Defense Mel Laird, brought him into the Pentagon. Yet Froehke attended a board meeting after his resignation and retained a $200,000 share in the stock company deal.

All told, the 33 stood to make a $10 million bonanza at the expense of the policyholders. The Webb report showed that the Wisconsin Insurance Department had actually helped with the planning. And the Chase Manhattan Bank assisted with a $4.5 million loan promise, worked out secretly in advance.

Then Fong, the suave millionaire president of Grand skeptical, Pacific Life Insurance of Hawaii, turned on Hart, too.

"First of all," he said his hands, "I suppose it is, blantly, 'I do not think we have an obligation to do it. Secondly, illustrating how the special I think it would be officious on interests pull political strings in our part to tell (the Wisconsin the back rooms will be published Commissioner) that we have in a future column."

CRITICS OF PATRIOTISM

Although a recent turn to the right in America has caused patriotism to become somewhat more fashionable than it was a while ago, the downgraders of this noble sentiment are still at work. They realize there is a limit to what they can accomplish by open denunciation of patriots, so they use the old techniques of "divide and conquer" and "discredit by innuendo."

The critic of patriotism says our first loyalty must be to the world as a whole and not to our home country. He accuses citizens who give first devotion to their homeland of being bigoted and warmongers. He says patriotism is basically a wartime fever and fosters blind obedience to worn-out principles. He downgrades the flag, the patriot's salute to it, and its symbolism in our heritage of freedom. He wants God removed from song, building, classroom and public lands. He demands license for the atheist, the one-world advocate and the breaker of selected laws. He wants restraints placed on the believer in God and the law-abiding citizen.

The anti-patriot American says nobody should be allowed to interfere with his acts of violent demonstration, sniping, looting, marching, sitting and capturing. He holds there is nothing sacred about public buildings, private property, family life, and even the church.

The critics of patriotism are quite vocal in stating the principles to which they will not be loyal. They never seem to know to what they will be loyal. They are easy to spot by their words and actions, and they cannot stand against the truth the patriot knows. HLH

Overweight Rose Between Two Skinny Thorns Who Eat Constantly

Dear Ann Landers: I have home. read many letters in your column complaining about smokers who annoy their co-workers in offices. And now you will please say something to people who eat all day long?

My desk is between two garbage trucks with teeth. The smell of food in nauseating - onions, garlic, overripe pears and bananas. The sound effects drive me wild. The woman at my right loves apples and has consumed at least two bushels this winter. The crunching and slobbering is unbearable. She doesn't use a fruit knife - just chops into the whole apple and devours it, core and all.

As you have probably guessed, the two non-stop eaters are skinny as sparrows and I am overweight, dieting and hungry all the time. Please don't tell me to "speak up." I haven't the nerve. If you will print this letter I will post it on the office bulletin board. Thanks, Doll. I love you. - Andy

Dear Ann Landers: Before my son went to Vietnam he fathered a child. Bart told me about the affair when the girl was six months pregnant. He could not bring himself to marry Sally because he didn't love her. She agreed to put the baby up for adoption. Bart gave her $2,000 (which he got from me) so she wouldn't have to work for a few months before and after the birth.

Six weeks before the baby was born Bart learned that Sally had married a man 15 years her senior. Through a mutual friend, Sally got hold of Bart's address in Vietnam and has been writing to him and sending him pictures of the baby. Bart sends the pictures to me. The child is an image of Bart.

My son wants to cut clean from this girl but he fears she is going to use this child to pursue him. He has not answered her letters but she continues to write. What should be done? Bart has asked me to go to see Sally and tell her to leave him alone. Should I? - Newark

Dear Ann Landers: No. A man who is old enough to father a child should not send his mother on errands of this nature. Bart should return Sally's letters unopened. She'll get the drift - eventually, and leave him alone - if he wants to be left alone, that is.

Dear Ann Landers: How much time should a husband spend with his own wife when he takes her to a party? Ed and I have been arguing about this for nine years.

Whenever we go out, Ed disappears after the first dance and I don't see him until it's time to go home. He insists the whole idea of a party is so people can mill around and talk to somebody other than the person they are married to. His main argument is, "A man can talk to his wife at home."

Does anyone else have this problem? - Neglected

Dear Neg: Thousands of people. I get this question at least five times a week. The answer is as follows. Accept the fact that your husband is a gregarious fellow and he's not likely to change. When you go out for the evening, don't follow him around and make a pest of yourself. Many wives who write to me have more serious problems than being ignored at a party - such as being left at

Ramon de los Reyes of Reyes-Soler Ballet

Concert Tonight

The second concert of Community Concert, Sikeston, will be presented at 8 p.m. tonight in the Charleston Junior High school auditorium. Artists are the Reyes / Soler Ballet Espanol de Madrid.

Ramon de Los Reyes grew up among the gypsies and began dancing when he was nine years old. He had his first lesson at age 17. After compulsory military service he formed his own trio which opened at the Hilton Hotel in Madrid.

His partner, Lola Soler, is a striking, exotic beauty who displays the characteristics of an aristocratic father and a beautiful gypsy mother. She was sent to England to study classical ballet, which she did for many years but the call of the gypsy within her was overwhelming.

She returned to Spain and to the tantalizing Flamenco dances. Their program is not limited to any particular epoch or region of Spain but covers all the most colorful phases of Spanish dance from Spain and Latin America. They do the fiery Flamenco of Andalusia and the charming shepherd dances of the Basque country. In costumes spectacularly beautiful and authentic.

T. Texas Tyler To Minister At First Assembly

T. TEXAS TYLER, known as "The Man With a Million Friends," one of the foremost country western artists for many years, will be featured at a service in the First Assembly of God Church, on Wednesday 7:30 p.m. according to Rev. Thurman McDonough, Pastor.

It will mark one of the first appearances in this area by T. Texas Tyler, a man who, for many years spent his time touring throughout the United States and Canada headlining "Grand Ole Opry" shows, appearing with his large bands in ballrooms, clubs, and on T.V. and other forms of entertainment.

Tyler will tell in his service his amazing story of how he decided to quit this life to become a preacher of the Gospel. He was converted in the early part of 1958 and has since devoted his full time to Gospel work. He was catapulted to nationwide fame in 1948 with his smash hit "Deck of Cards" which he wrote himself. Some of his other big record hits were: "Remember Me," "Bumming Around," "Courtin' in the Rain," and many others.

Tyler has the distinction of being one of the very few country and western artists to ever appear in concert at New York's famed Carnegie Hall. He has also been under contract to Columbia Studios in Hollywood in the making of Western movies. In the annals of country and western music, T. Texas Tyler was considered among the top entertainers of our time. However in his own words, "the show is over."

He will be playing his guitar and singing many gospel songs. Tyler is an ordained minister. A love offering will be taken during the service for Tyler's ministry. He will also have his gospel albums after the service.

In his amazing story to be told in his appearance here he will tell why after twenty-eight years in show business he gave up all the entertainment world had to offer to utilize all his talents exclusively in Gospel work.

A capacity crowd is expected and Pastor McDonough suggests early attendance. The service is open to the public and admission is free.

Love is...

Edward MacDowell, first American composer to gain international recognition, left a legacy in addition to his music, The World Almanac notes. After his death in 1908, MacDowell's summer home in Peterboro, N.H., was transformed by his wife, Marian, into an artists' colony where at least 22 Pulitzer Prize-winning works have been produced.

Big Men Dominate Big 8 Star Squad

It was strictly the year of the big men in Big Eight basketball in 1970, and the fact is reflected in the Associated Press all-conference team made public to-31 day.

Two centers and three forwards, averaging 6 feet, 7 inches, make up the AP All-Big Eight team as selected by a vote of conference coaches and 32 newsmen in the six-state area.

Dave Robisch, Kansas' high-scoring junior center from Springfield, Ill., not only heads the team with his 6-foot-9 frame. He also is the only unanimous selection.

Robisch, who rivaled two illustrious Jayhawk predecessors, Wilt Chamberlain and Walt Wesley, as one of the top scorers in Big Eight history, was named on the first team of every ballot cast.

Narrowly missing unanimous selection was Cliff Meely, Colorado's slick-moving 6-8 junior forward from Chicago, Ill., who was placed on the second team on two ballots.

Edward MacDowell, first American composer to gain international recognition, left a legacy in addition to his music, The World Almanac notes. After his death in 1908, MacDowell's summer home in Peterboro, N.H., was transformed by his wife, Marian, into an artists' colony where at least 22 Pulitzer Prize-winning works have been produced.

Big Men Dominate Big 8 Star Squad

It was strictly the year of the big men in Big Eight basketball in 1970, and the fact is reflected in the Associated Press all-conference team made public to-day.

Two centers and three forwards, averaging 6 feet, 7 inches, make up the AP All-Big Eight team as selected by a vote of conference coaches and 32 newsmen in the six-state area.

Dave Robisch, Kansas' high-scoring junior center from Springfield, Ill., not only leads the team with his 6-foot-9 frame. He also is the only unanimous selection.

Robisch, who rivaled two illustrious Jayhawk predecessors, Wilt Chamberlain and Walt Wesley, as one of the top scorers in Big Eight history, was named on the first team of every ballot cast.

Narrowly missing unanimous selection was Cliff Meely, Colorado's slick-moving 6-8 junior forward from Chicago, Ill., who was placed on the second team on two ballots.

Next in the vote-getting was Garfield Heard, Oklahoma's muscular 6-6 senior forward from Hogshead, Ga., who was relegated to the second team on eight ballots.

Completing the first AP team were Bill Cain, 6-6 senior forward from Iowa State from White Plains, N.Y., and Jerry Venable, 6-5 senior forward from Big Eight champion Kansas State from Staunton, Va.

The first-teamers ranked as the top five scorers in Big Eight conference games, combining for an average of nearly 21 points a game per man this season.

Venable beat out Colorado's

Jordan Tope and Nebraska's Tom Scantlebury in a narrow vote for the fifth spot on the first team.

Besides Tope and Scantlebury, the second team is made up of Don Tomlinson, 6-7 forward from Colorado, and Zender of Kansas and Pierre Russell of Kansas.

Zender is a sophomore, Russell a junior and the other three seniors.

Russell beat out David Hall of Kansas State in the voting for the last spot on the second team.

Robisch, Meely and Cain are repeaters from the 1969 team. Tomlinson was selected to the first team a year ago, but slipped to the second unit this year.

Tope was a second-team choice last year, also. Slipping from second-team recognition to receive honorable mention this year were Aaron Jenkins of Iowa State and David Pike of Missouri.

Oddly, it was another Kansas State player, Steve Honeycutt, who won a first-team berth last year, bumping Tope to the second team. This year, the Wildcats' Jerry Venable did the same thing.

A total of 29 players received at least one vote, but the honorable mention list was restricted to those named on at least two ballots.

First Team
Dave Robisch, Kansas, 6-9, junior
Cliff Meely, Colorado, 6-8, junior
Garfield Heard, Oklahoma, 6-6, senior
Bill Cain, Iowa State, 6-6, senior

Delta C-7 Dominates Bootheel Selections

Delta C-7 of Deering landed four players on the Bootheel conference All-Star basketball team as selected for the Dunkin' Democrat of Kennett.

Hayti and Caruthersville placed three players each on the All-Star B team while North and South Pemiscot landed three players each on the league's All-Academic squad.

Two sophomores highlighted the varsity's 10 man squad, with North Pemiscot's Terry McCulloch and Hayti North's Northern McIntyre being selected along with juniors Don Smith of North Pemiscot; Paul Scott and Doc Conner of Delta C-7 and Joe Lynn of Cooter.

Charles Jones and Eddie Starks joined Scott and Conner on the varsity team while Claude Robinson of North Pemiscot; South Pemiscot's Jerry Whittington and Larry Weatherspoon of Hayti North rounded out the top ten.

Tony Ruff, Verdria Kuykendall and Donald Trotter, were Hayti North players selected to the B-team All-Star squad along with Caruthersville's William Reno, George Carr and Eric Hubbard. Delta

C-7's Terry Lance; Mike Neal and Ronnie Cole of South Pemiscot and Ronald Young of North Pemiscot joined the Caruthersville and Hayti stars.

Cooter's Sam Hill ranked as the top player on the Academic squad, averaging 4.0 out of a possible 4.0 grade average.

SHS Indoor Track Season Opens Friday

With the conclusion of the 1970 basketball season, at SHS, the High School trackmen will now take the roundballer's place in the Field House under the direction of coach Bill Friday with three indoor track meets scheduled for the year's Spring Sport competition. A new sport for SHS-ers this year, the Indoor Track season was made possible through the facilities of the Sikeston High School Field House. Running events and field events are scheduled in the Spring Sport with area schools along with an out-of-state entry making up the opposition.

The first of the three indoor matches is scheduled for this Friday,

March 13, where the Bulldogs runners will face competition from: Cape Central, Charleston, Kennett, Jackson, Perryville, Lilbourn, and Paducah. Competition looks stiff for the Dogs this year but they may have an edge over the visiting track teams with all of the area indoor meets scheduled for the Sikeston Field House. An admission of $1.00 will be charged for the track meet this Friday evening which is scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m.

The following Thursday, March 19 will be the second of the Indoor meets of the season. Cape, Charleston, Kennett, Perryville, Jackson, and Lilbourn will return for the second encounter while Poplar Bluff, and Senath-Hornersville compete for their first time in the "Dome with Paducah falling out of competition. During this track meet the 19th State Indoor Qualifying times will be held to see who will represent the area in the three Classes of the State meet to be held during the weekends of March 27-28.

Closing out the Indoor track season for the Dogs runners is a meet scheduled for the 24th of March. Entries in the meet are: Cape Central, Caruthersville, Charleston, Kennett, Poplar Bluff, Perryville and Jackson. Following this clash the Bulldogs will then move outside and on to the cinder track, more associated with track to Sikeston fans. The track season will then continue with the Dogs hosting and traveling to other track events.

Since Friday, March 13 marks the opening of the Indoor track season for the Bulldogs, we hope the Sikeston squad, coached by Bill Friday and Jim Graham, has much success through the previewing Indoor season, despite the date being Friday the thirteenth.

NEW OATS VARIETY seed stock is inventoried by Randy Fallman, left, and Dale Sechler. The variety, Nodaway, 70, a spring oats, was developed by the University of Missouri in Columbia Agricultural Experiment Station and the Crops Research Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. About 600 bushels of foundation seed are being distributed this season for increase. A supply of registered seed is expected to be available to Missouri farmers for the 1971 season. Fallman manages the Experiment Station's foundation seed supply. Sechler, a UMC agronomist, assisted in developing the new oats variety. J. M. Poehlman, UMC agronomist, headed the Nodaway 70 oats research project.

Pathology Called Vital in Death Examinations

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Science, not politics, should govern the investigation of deaths, Dr. Alan R. Moritz of Cleveland, known as the "dean of forensic pathology," said Monday night. Moritz addressed the American Association of Pathologists and Bacteriologists convention where he received the association's "gold headed cane award." It recognized the highest ideals in pathology and medicine.

Moritz said that when routine investigation is made by a medical examiner's or coroner's office without using a pathologist, deaths passed off as natural or accidental may actually be murders.

On the other hand, Moritz said, investigation by a pathologist can show what is thought to be a murder a natural or accidental death.

He cited the case of a Cleveland dockworker who was struck on the head, but suffered no apparent injury. The man died about two days later and his death was listed as due to a heart attack. He had been warned by his physician a week earlier he had high blood pressure.

As a matter of routine, Moritz said, the coroner's office ordered an examination by a pathologist and the cause of death was found to be subdural hematomas, bleeding between the skull and the brain, caused by the blow on the head.

"So here was a widow and dependent children who were eligible for substantial death benefits in workmen's compensation which would have been denied them without that routine exam," Dr. Moritz said. "It is in the public interest that the true facts be obtained, to prevent injustices that are inevitable when no investigation is made," the pathologist said.

Moritz established the nation's first department of legal medicine at Harvard University in 1907.

NEW OATS VARIETY seed stock is inventoried by Randy Fallman, left, and Dale Sechler. The variety, Nodaway, 70, a spring oats, was developed by the University of Missouri in Columbia Agricultural Experiment Station and the Crops Research Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. About 600 bushels of foundation seed are being distributed this season for increase. A supply of registered seed is expected to be available to Missouri farmers for the 1971 season. Fallman manages the Experiment Station's foundation seed supply. Sechler, a UMC agronomist, assisted in developing the new oats variety. J. M. Poehlman, UMC agronomist, headed the Nodaway 70 oats research project.

Hotel Site Condemnation In Cape Begins

CAPE GIRARDEAU - City officials have taken the first step in condemnation of the burned-out Idan-Ha Hotel property at Broadway and North Fountain by serving legal notices of the dangerous condition of the site on trustees of the Montgomery Trust of Sikeston, now owner of the property.

Harry C. Sachse, city building inspector, said the notices, which also include orders to repair or demolish the property, concerns the five-story structure fronting on Fountain.

The trustees, in the notice, are told the present condition of the building is in violation of the new city ordinance which complies with provisions set out in the new state law on dangerous structures.

Among the other things, the notices state the exterior walls are leaning to a dangerous extent, the roof of the building has been destroyed, and there is more than 50 per cent damage to non-supporting walls.

It states the portion of the building which has been removed that immediately adjacent to the wooden retaining wall - constitutes a health and safety hazard to citizens because this area is a breeding place for rats.

The building is also a health and safety hazard in other ways in that it is dilapidated and inadequately maintained, the city claims. Walls immediately adjacent to Fountain and Broadway are in a dilapidated and decayed state and could fall upon citizens using the street or sidewalk, the notices state.

It is also said the structure is eyesore and is frequented by disorderly persons because the entrances are not barricaded.

The building is formally declared a nuisance in the notices which order the property owner to repair it to meet city standards or to demolish it.

City Attorney Howard C. Wright said the property owner is given 14 days from March 12 in which to commence repair or demolition of the building. The owner has 30 days to complete the chosen means of correcting the violation.

If this is not done, the building inspector, Mr. Sachse, will notify the city's building supervisor, Gerald H. Johnson, who would set a hearing date. At the hearing, the supervisor would rule on the failure to comply and make a decision as to whether or not the city has reason to order the owner to do the things set out in the legal notices.

Should the supervisor rule the city has just cause, a penalty of $100 for each day of violation could be imposed, the city attorney said. It would also be possible, if feasible, for the city to correct the situation by demolishing the structure, recovering the cost through a tax bill to the owner.

Joel A. Montgomery, Sikeston businessman, who established the trust for his three children, said he would have little to say about the situation since the trust is in the hands of the trustees. Most likely, he said, the trustees will turn the notices over to their legal counsel for advisement.

Davis May Run for Governor

KENNETT - Although he has generally been discounted as a candidate by most state political observers, Missouri Weekly has learned that True Davis, now living in Washington, D.C., is seriously considering making the race for governor in 1972.

Safely stashed away as president of the National Bank of Washington, the capital's oldest bank, Davis was believed by most observers to be politically out of sight as Democrats begin jockeying for the race that is still more than two years away.

But Missouri Weekly has learned that Davis has, in recent days, been making a few quiet telephone calls to some of his more loyal supporters, and in each instance he has told them he may be interested in seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Such hints, hardly veiled, mean that Davis is attempting to receive the political organization he hurriedly put together in 1968 when he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senator.

Davis, saddened last year by the tragic death of his wife, Virginia, while big-game hunting in Africa, returned to the United States and was quickly named to the board of directors of the National Bank of Washington. Late last year he assumed the presidency of the bank.

At that point, and following his 1968 defeat in a three-man race for the Senate post now held by Thomas F. Eagleton, Davis was generally discounted as a gubernatorial candidate in 1972.

Appreciative of Sir John Churchill's victory at Blenheim, Queen Anne ordered in his honor the building of Blenheim Palace in 1705. The World Almanac says. The 187-room palace with seven-foot-thick walls was the birthplace of Winston Churchill, who wrote of his ancestor's desires for Blenheim: "As the Pharaohs built their Pyramids, so he sought a physical monument which would certainly stand, if only as a ruin, for thousands of years."

6 Starlings Roost on River, Health Threat

CARUTHERSVILLE - warmth, moisture, and preferably some darkness. Millions of "Starlings" have come home, home to Caruthersville. Their roost is located next to the Mississippi River, just across the levee behind businesses on the north side of Third Street. These birds contribute to a disease known as histoplasmosis which affects millions of people all over the country, many who live in the Mississippi River Valley.

At a recent meeting of the Caruthersville City Council, a councilman asked how the birds could be eliminated. It was suggested that the fire truck be taken to the roost to blow the siren and scare the birds away. The birds could possibly set up other roosts in town if they were frightened, it was pointed out by Alderman Main.

Dub Pate, Administrator at the Pemiscot County Health Center, has no "sure solutions" to the problems. He stated that about the only thing that could be done is to drive the birds away before they had time to make a roost. But, Caruthersville's bird population has been roosting for more than 10 years across the levee. By being here for more than five years, the disease called "histo" has had time to form.

There is one solution to the problem, an expensive one. The roost must be destroyed. The birds cannot be. Ten to fifteen per cent of the birds living with the starlings are "black birds" which are protected in Missouri and cannot be killed.

According to Pate, the recommended way to destroy the roost would be to treat the soil, first, with 3 per cent formaldehyde in three separate applications, soaking the soil several inches. After the soil is decontaminated, the trees have to be pushed over with heavy equipment. How much would this cost? The cost would total approximately $50,000 plus. Consent must also be given by the landowner to destroy the roost and push over his trees.

Pate stated that he had studied this problem for some time and had sought federal aid in getting the birds eliminated. But, according to the Administrator there are no funds available.

Why not put up with these birds, their odor and noise and maybe they will fly away? Where there is a roost, there is histoplasmosis if the roost has been in existence for more than five years. Histo, used to be considered a rural Midwestern disease. But it has been discovered recently in small towns and even cities in the East and other parts of the country. Because the histo seeds, called spores, are living things, they need certain conditions in which to flourish. There must be by scaring the birds away before they made themselves a home. We've waited too long for this, now we must spend some money.

These conditions are found most often in accumulated droppings from chickens, pigeons, starlings, and other birds, as well as bats. Caruthersville has the birds, conditions, and a very large roost.

Who has histoplasmosis? Fifty-nine per cent of the elementary students in Caruthersville checked "positive" to histoplasmosis test given by the County Health Center in 1965. Yet, 44 per cent of the elementary children in Portageville checked "positive". And there is no bird roost in that city.

Most persons who come in contact with and breathe a heavy barrage of histo spores get the disease. A light case will resemble that of flu, while a more serious case will resemble tuberculosis. Pate stated that he knew of one fatal case. In other cases, a person may have the disease and have no ill-effects what-so-ever.

Pate stated that some 25 people are treated annually at the Missouri Sanitarium for histoplasmosis. And, he also added that there are approximately 23 roosts in this area. Malden, for example, is experiencing the same problem, and Dexter.

Some birds have established their own homes away from the big roosts in Caruthersville. Pate suggested that residents who find birds roosting in their trees should bang tin cans together, hit the bottom of the tree with a ball bat, and do anything to disturb the bird. Since there is a city ordinance against shooting a gun in the city limits, the use of fire arms is prohibited. The birds will leave the roost, simply because they have to have their sleep and when disturbed, they look for other quarters.

The health official also discourages any groups, including Scouts and school groups from having clean-up projects in this area as they will disturb the soil and likely get histo.

Many Caruthersville residents have teased about the birds. Some say jokingly that Alfred Hitchcock's story "The Birds" may be coming true while others think the birds are pretty and will fly off by themselves. But, as long as there is a roost in Caruthersville, the birds will return, year after year the number will increase and other roosts will also be established.

Many Caruthersville residents have teased about the birds. Some say jokingly that Alfred Hitchcock's story "The Birds" may be coming true while others think the birds are pretty and will fly off by themselves. But, as long as there is a roost in Caruthersville, the birds will return, year after year the number will increase and other roosts will also be established.

Kennett did the right thing

by scaring the birds away before they made themselves a home. We've waited too long for this, now we must spend some money.

These conditions are found most often in accumulated droppings from chickens, pigeons, starlings, and other birds, as well as bats. Caruthersville has the birds, conditions, and a very large roost.

Who has histoplasmosis? Fifty-nine per cent of the elementary students in Caruthersville checked "positive" to histoplasmosis test given by the County Health Center in 1965. Yet, 44 per cent of the elementary children in Portageville checked "positive". And there is no bird roost in that city.

Most persons who come in contact with and breathe a heavy barrage of histo spores get the disease. A light case will resemble that of flu, while a more serious case will resemble tuberculosis. Pate stated that he knew of one fatal case. In other cases, a person may have the disease and have no ill-effects what-so-ever.

Pate stated that some 25 people are treated annually at the Missouri Sanitarium for histoplasmosis. And, he also added that there are approximately 23 roosts in this area. Malden, for example, is experiencing the same problem, and Dexter.

Some birds have established their own homes away from the big roosts in Caruthersville. Pate suggested that residents who find birds roosting in their trees should bang tin cans together, hit the bottom of the tree with a ball bat, and do anything to disturb the bird. Since there is a city ordinance against shooting a gun in the city limits, the use of fire arms is prohibited. The birds will leave the roost, simply because they have to have their sleep and when disturbed, they look for other quarters.

The health official also discourages any groups, including Scouts and school groups from having clean-up projects in this area as they will disturb the soil and likely get histo.

Honored were Ervin Lash, who received a pin from the Grand Lodge of Missouri marking his 50th year as a Master Mason; and Dee Jennings, who received the light blue cap of a 50-year Scottish Rite Mason.

Records of the local lodge show that it has 12 living Master Masons with over 50 years of membership in the lodge. Three of these Jennings, Lash and Clyde Swank were present at the dinner and ceremonies last week.

Another, J. Lanier Byrd, who was to have received his 50-year pin, was out of town Thursday. The other 50-year members are Miles T. Lee, Clarkson Ogilvie, George U. Shelby, James C. McDowell, E. Jerry Deal, Elmer Oliver, George Cox, and George B. Stewart.

Lash and two of his brothers, T. C. Lash and M. E. Lash, petitioned the Lodge for admission on the same day, Sept. 17, 1919. According to Robert Oliver, this is probably the only time in the history of the Lodge that three brothers petitioned for membership at the same time.

TV Reruns Near After Bland Season

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1969-70 television season will be history in about three weeks. Then it will be, as usual, reruns and replacement shows for the next five months.

As far as the commercial networks are concerned, 1969-70 probably will be, at best, a footnote in TV history. Its entertainment has been bland and most of it easily forgotten. The brightest new program was a daily series aimed at children between ages 3 and 5, "Sesame Street."

This series, on the educational network, was not only well done and appealed to its audience but nudged the commercial networks into doing more than talking about upgrading the quality of children's programming.

Popular series from other seasons, often a little shopworn and weary, continued to be the most popular viewing fare. Good old movies attracted big audiences and bad old movies were treated by the audience the way they treated bad television shows. Variety shows, slick and colorful, had a tendency to look alike as the same guest stars traveled from one to another.

The so-called "variety specials" often were no more special than the weekly shows—Anne Bancroft's recent hour was a happy exception.

No bright new stars arrived, no engaging new concept became a series, and TV exposure dulled the shine on some established stars. Neither Debbie Reynolds nor Lana Turner did much for her career by taking a TV fling.

Original dramas, few in number, were rarely memorable. Occasionally, however, a performance lit up the tubes—Uta Hagen in a "CBS Playhouse," Patty Duke and Al Freeman Jr. in a "World Premiere" feature, Peter Ustinov in a "Hall of Fame" drama.

Criticism of TV violence muzzled the guns and reduced the mayhem, but nobody came up with a stimulating substitute for the flat fight or the shootout. New comedy shows seemed to draw inspiration, format and sometimes the jokes from old comedies.

Behind the cameras, there is considerable worry about the medium, about the impending loss of cigarette advertising and about a new report that viewing is down.

Nielsen studies still indicate that the average TV set is in use well over six hours a day and the number of people watching is increasing. But a rival firm, the American Research Bureau, said its study found that viewing had dropped, in some places as much as 10 per cent.

The cause is a mystery and the validity of the report is controversial.

Paintings of Kansas City Artist Shown

JACKSON — A collection of 30 paintings by Matthew Monks of Kansas City will be exhibited at the Riverside Regional Library April 3.

Monks is a nationally known artist; and his productions are represented in many art galleries. In 1966 he was selected as one of the artists to conduct a series of painting demonstrations for junior and high school students in both Kansas City, Mo. and Kansas City, Kansas.

This collection is a traveling exhibit which is available through the Missouri State Council on the Arts. The council was created by act of the Legislature in 1966 to stimulate and encourage growth of art throughout the state. Invitations to come to see the exhibit are extended to extension clubs, study clubs, civic organizations, art schools and art classes in the state and the area.

Last year the library sponsored an exhibit of the creative arts, which was viewed by more than 1,000. The library will be open nights on the first two days from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Appointment should be made for reservations for large groups who plan to visit.

Shooting Match Will Be Sponsored By Jaycees

A Jaycee shooting match will be held next Monday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on the Rodeo grounds.

Participants may use a shotgun, .22 caliber or a high-power rifle, with or without scopes.

Roof of the World
The Pamirs, a mountain region in central Asia, is called "the roof of the world" because of its great altitude. In India, the Pamirs are called Bam-i-dunya, which means, literally, "ton of the world."

If You Were the Judge
Even Dead Cannot
Defame the Living

George was born into a patriotic family that was red, white and he blew it. Or so said his grandfather's will when the latter died. When the will was read, it stated that George had been disinherited because he had been a draft dodger during World War II.

"Now that's ridiculous!" protested George. "I wasn't a draft dodger. The fact is, I wanted to get into the army in the worst way but I was in the worst way and they wouldn't take me."

In due course, George sued his grandfather's estate for damages on the grounds that his will had defamed him.

"A dead man can't be sued for what he says in his will," responded the executor of the estate. "Once he's in his grave, only a higher authority can punish him. Therefore George isn't entitled to collect."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit George's grandfather to avoid responsibility for his words because he's six feet underground?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that while a person is perfectly free to explain in his will why he has disinherited a particular person, he may not defame anyone in doing so. If he does, his estate may be held responsible for damages. (Based upon a 1954 Oregon Supreme Court decision)

On a regular summons issued by a trooper, court cost normally is $11.50. If a bond is required, court cost normally is $17.

Direct Vote for President Bill
Paid for Welfare

WASHINGTON (AP) - An amendment to legislation providing for direct election of a president is being co-sponsored by Sens. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., and Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan.

The amendment would preserve the principal of direct election of the president but modify it to avoid the need for a runoff election and assure that a president - elect enjoys wide support, Eagleton said.

The proposal provides that a president would be elected if he (a) won a plurality of the national vote and (b) won either pluralities in more than 50 per cent of the states, including the District of Columbia, or pluralities in states with more than 50 per cent of the voters in the election.

If no candidate qualified under the initial formula, the election would go to an electoral college where the states have a number of electoral votes equal to their total number of senators and representatives. Each candidate would automatically receive the electoral votes of the states he won.

In the event no candidate received a majority of the electoral votes, the electoral votes of states won by third party candidates would be divided between the two leading national candidates in proportion to their share of the popular votes in those states.

If You Were the Judge Even Dead Cannot Defame the Living

George was born into a patriotic family that was red, white and he blew it. Or so said his grandfather's will when the latter died. When the will was read, it stated that George had been disinherited because he had been a draft dodger during World War II.

"Now that's ridiculous!" protested George. "I wasn't a draft dodger. The fact is, I wanted to get into the army in the worst way but I was in the worst way and they wouldn't take me."

In due course, George sued his grandfather's estate for damages on the grounds that his will had defamed him.

"A dead man can't be sued for what he says in his will," responded the executor of the estate. "Once he's in his grave, only a higher authority can punish him. Therefore George isn't entitled to collect."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit George's grandfather to avoid responsibility for his words because he's six feet underground?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that while a person is perfectly free to explain in his will why he has disinherited a particular person, he may not defame anyone in doing so. If he does, his estate may be held responsible for damages. (Based upon a 1954 Oregon Supreme Court decision)

Cape and Charleston In Freight Proposal

JEFFERSON CITY — Organization of the Missouri Department of Agriculture, announced today that a contract agreement has been signed between the dairy division of the state agency and National Farmers Organization on inspection of milk collected at transfer stations operated by NFO in Missouri.

The Department of Agriculture has also contacted John Vaughn, Missouri budget controller, requesting an amendment to the department of Agriculture's 1970-71 budget to allow an increase of $26,860 to carry out the contract, Davis reports.

The agreement, signed by Ruben Schapeler, MDA Dairy Division director, and Ralph Bruemmer, dairy representative of NFO, specifies that NFO will pay the State — through MDA City Health Departments — he dairy division — five cents per one-hundred pounds on all milk collected at Missouri transfer stations operated by the

Mississippi River Levee To Be Raised, Strengthened

CHARLESTON — Ronald L. Brink, Brink Construction Company, Quincy, Ill., has signed a construction contract for work on the first phase of a project to raise and strengthen the front line levee from Birds Point to New Madrid.

The ceremonies were held at the Charleston Country Club pavilion.

A spokesman for the Memphis District, Army Corps of Engineers said the contract signing came almost two years ahead of the original schedule, due to the cooperation of local landowners in providing easements for revised flowage rights in Birds Point to New Madrid Floodway. Construction is not expected to begin until after the start of the new fiscal year in July, he spokesman said.

Col. Charles T. Williams, district engineer, Memphis District, Corps of Engineers, explained that the Wyatt Project, covering 12 miles of the Upper Fuse Plug Section was the first of five construction items authorized.

Plans and specifications are virtually complete for the second item of work covering the Lower Fuse Plug Section. It is hoped that a contract will be let for this phase of the work sometime during the calendar year of 1970 Col. Williams said.

The other three items of work will be placed under contract as rapidly as funds become available and will, when completed, greatly enhance the flood protection measures for lands and properties within the floodway.

Under present conditions, hydraulic data for the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers in this location show a flood frequency that would make it necessary to use the spillway once about every 17 years. Upon completion of the proposed improvements with an expenditure in Mississippi and New Madrid counties of approximately $44 million, the frequency will be reduced to approximately once in 80 years.

The upper Fuse Plug section of the levee now stands at 57 feet, and this will be raised to 60 feet. Further work on the main line levee will raise all but the two fuse plug sections to about 62 1/2 feet, leaving a two-foot differential between fuse plug and main line areas.

Virtually all construction will be from the river side of the levee, so the flood walls will not only be raised, but also strengthened. The contract signed today was just for under a half-million dollars, according to a representative of the Corps of Engineers.

In connection with the signing of the contract by Mr. Brink, members of the Mississippi County Levee District No. 3 gave a luncheon as an expression of their appreciation to some of the individuals whose efforts and cooperation made it possible to award the contract on this first item about two years ahead of the original schedule. Members of Col. Williams' staff and local citizens who gave support and assistance in acquiring the necessary flowage and right-of-way easements for the work were invited.

The judge could order the tests after receiving an investigator's affidavit setting forth reasonable grounds to suspect a person may have committed a particular crime.

Because the proposal would require persons to submit to only nontestimonial-type evidence, Justice Department officials said, it would not violate the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

According to Schapeler, there are two transfer stations in Missouri, one in Jefferson City and one in Mountain Grove. These are collection points where milk is transferred from local trucks to large milk tanks to be shipped out of state, primarily to Oklahoma and Texas. Schapeler says the estimated milk transfer is expected to exceed 200,000 pounds a day. Schapeler said the action was in compliance with provisions of Section 196.952, Revised Statutes of Missouri (1959).

Mississippi River Levee To Be Raised, Strengthened

CHARLESTON — Ronald L. Brink, Brink Construction Company, Quincy, Ill., has signed a construction contract for work on the first phase of a project to raise and strengthen the front line levee from Birds Point to New Madrid.

The ceremonies were held at the Charleston Country Club pavilion.

A spokesman for the Memphis District, Army Corps of Engineers said the contract signing came almost two years ahead of the original schedule, due to the cooperation of local landowners in providing easements for revised flowage rights in Birds Point to New Madrid Floodway. Construction is not expected to begin until after the start of the new fiscal year in July, he spokesman said.

Col. Charles T. Williams, district engineer, Memphis District, Corps of Engineers, explained that the Wyatt Project, covering 12 miles of the Upper Fuse Plug Section was the first of five construction items authorized.

Plans and specifications are virtually complete for the second item of work covering the Lower Fuse Plug Section. It is hoped that a contract will be let for this phase of the work sometime during the calendar year of 1970 Col. Williams said.

The other three items of work will be placed under contract as rapidly as funds become available and will, when completed, greatly enhance the flood protection measures for lands and properties within the floodway.

Under present conditions, hydraulic data for the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers in this location show a flood frequency that would make it necessary to use the spillway once about every 17 years. Upon completion of the proposed improvements with an expenditure in Mississippi and New Madrid counties of approximately $4 1/2 million, the frequency will be reduced to approximately once in 80 years.

The upper Fuse Plug section of the levee now stands at 57 feet, and this will be raised to 60 feet. Further work on the main line levee will raise all but the

High Costs May Stoddard Judge Ordered to Offset Gains in Milk Production Disqualify Self in Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department economists expect 1970 milk sales by farmers to top last year's record of $6.1 billion. But they feel that higher costs will offset most of the gain.

In a summary report on the dairy situation Monday, officials said average prices for all milk received by producers in January and February were about five per cent more than a year earlier.

Manufacturing grade milk prices the first two months of the year were up eight per cent, while Class I or bottling milk rose four per cent above a year earlier.

A strong demand for cheese products has been the main factor for higher milk prices the past year, the report said. But now cheese production is catching up with demand.

Wholesale cheddar cheese prices dropped 3/4 cents per pound in February and may be near the government price support level by summer, officials said.

Assuming no changes in programs and no government cheese buying, milk price gains for farmers probably will be less after the first three months of this year, officials said.

For the entire year, they said, milk prices may gain less than the four per cent average boost for all of 1969.

Consumers paid about three per cent more for dairy products last year, and a further price boost was expected for 1970, the report said.

Total milk output this year is expected to be near the 136.2 billion pounds of 1969.

Per capita milk consumption last year was 565 pounds milk equivalent, two per cent less than in 1968. A similar drop is seen for 1970, officials said.

Burlison Reports on Survey

WASHINGTON — The office of United States Representative Bill D. Burlison today released statistics showing the response to four more of the questions included on his recent postal patron questionnaire. It was pointed out that because of the overwhelming number of replies the results could not be computed and reported earlier.

The Congressman related that he hoped to have the balance of the questions tabulated in about a week. Soon thereafter all 18,000 people will receive the computation and thus compare their own views with those of a majority of the district at large.

The results are as follows:

Mitchell Seeks Authority To Demand Fingerprints

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has called for strengthening the federal anticrime arsenal by arming police with authority to force suspects to submit to fingerprinting, blood sampling and other tests.

In submitting the proposed legislation Monday to Congress, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell claimed enactment would provide federal investigators with a useful new tool.

He noted the only individuals who can now be fingerprinted are those who "have first been arrested on probable cause."

The administration bill would eliminate that restriction and require, instead, only "reasonable grounds not amounting to probable cause to arrest."

Mitchell did not define reasonable grounds, but the measure specified a federal judge, commissioner or magistrate would have to order the tests.

Among things a judicial officer could force a suspect to submit to, under the proposal, are "fingerprints, palm prints, footprints, measurements, blood specimens, urine specimens, saliva samples, hair samples, JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court Monday ordered Circuit Judge William H. Billings of Stoddard County to disqualify himself in a juvenile case and to call in another judge to hear charges against R. L. B. and W. L. R.

The juveniles, aged 13 and 15, allegedly broke into a shed adjoining a residence and stole $200 from a trunk.

They were to be tried in juvenile court and their attorney asked that Judge Billings disqualify himself "because of his prejudice against them."

Billings refused on grounds the juvenile code is a code unto itself and there is no provision for the disqualification of a juvenile judge.

Hiram H. Lesar, dean of the Washington University School of Law, St. Louis, was named friend of the court to argue Billings' position.

Today the court said that juvenile court proceedings are actually civil and not criminal suits. There is provision for disqualification of a judge in the beating of Arriola by the Kelleys and said Arriola did not fight back. She said after the fight she and her husband took Arriola to the hospital and tried to get him to call police.

She said she and her husband had also urged the Kelleys to call police in regard to the burglary, but they ignored the suggestion.

Maglone said the Kelleys threatened again to kill Mr. Arriola the next day, Feb. 8.

Charges were filed against the Kelleys and Copen three days later.

Maglone's testimony was about the same as that of his wife. He was employed by Kelley Transportation Co. as a mechanic, but was fired following the alleged crime.

He also testified that the Kelleys had a deed to his house and had told him he had to get out when they fired him.

At the conclusion of testimony for the prosecution, the defendants' attorney moved for dismissal of the charges against Copen. He said here was no testimony to indicate that he participated in the beating.

Prosecuting Attorney Seier argued that the evidence indicated Copen was aware of what was to happen when he asked Arriola to step to the rear of the transportation building and therefore, was an accomplice.

Magistrate Blomeyer, however, said there was no evidence to indicate that Copen knew a beating was to take place, and therefore he was dismissing charges against him.

Regarding the Kelleys, he said the evidence indicated a crime had been committed and there was sufficient reason to hold the Kelleys for trial.

At the request of the defendants' attorney Magistrate Blomeyer reduced the bond from $5,000 cash each to $5,000 property each.
